DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Krasner in view of Krinski et al.

Krasner disclose all of the subject matter set forth in the claims except for an additive consisting of a silicate. Krinski et al discloses an adhesive containing a silicate suitable for the production of or manufacture of laminated paper products such as corrugated board, paper tubes, paper or wood laminates. It would have been obvious to a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to provide the adhesive composition of Krasner with an additive consisting of silicate in the manner as taught by Krinski et al. in order to provide substantial viscosity at a low level of addition and resulting in a composition which has the necessary tack so that a small quantity of adhesive may be added to the surfaces to be joined and result in a bond of superior adhesive strength.
